

MODART07

THE VOICES OF THE FUTURE

Presented in association with the Australian Music Centre and ABC Classic FM

MODART gives young composers from around Australia the opportunity to develop a short vocal work in close collaboration with the singers of the Song Company and their director, Roland Peelman.

The project is a unique collaboration between The Song Company and the Australian Music Centre, and enables talented emerging composers to work with an ensemble of international renown as well as producing new repertoire, the potential for ongoing relationships, and an enhanced understanding of the diversity and quality of emerging Australian compositional voices.

Ever intent on fostering and developing new creative ways to approach vocal writing and encourage contemporary debate on text/music symbiosis, The Song Company has invited seven young composers to write a short work for a cappella ensemble one of whom is from New Zealand.

The 2007 participants are young composers Rebecca Harrison (SA), Andrew Batt-Rawden (currently overseas), Kate Moore (The Hague), Alex Pozniak (NSW), Chris Williams (NSW), Johanna Selleck (VIC), and New Zealand composer Claire Nash.

The composers will be required to spend at least one week with the company in Sydney during the second half of September culminating in a public performance and broadcast on Saturday 29 September, 8pm Music Workshop, Sydney Conservatorium of Music.

As in the very successful MODART03 and MODART05, the composers will have the opportunity to work closely with the singers and director of The Song Company during the process. Many other projects have already ensued from the MODART series and some ongoing collaboration has been forged. The selected composers will also benefit from considerable public exposure.

Hear Australia's finest young creative talent being nurtured by Roland Peelman and The Song Company.
